

HAVENS SCHOOL IS HOST TODAY

Patrons Throng Rooms to See Exhibits and Special Displays in Departmental Work.

EXPLAINED BY THE PUPILS

Miniature Houses, Furnished by the Children, Elicit Much Praise—Unusual Skill is Revealed.

Havens school had on its best dress today and entertained visitors all the day. The rooms and halls of the building were thronged with school patrons this afternoon especially viewing the display of special work and the pupils in their regular class work.

Visitors expressed great surprise at the exhibit. The pupils have made wonderful strides in card board construction, sewing, wood carving, raffia work, weaving, paper folding and free-hand cutting, when the fact is considered that the special work was established only last January.

The rooms were all decorated for the guests. Designs in water colors adorned the walls. The designs for the borders, which the pupils did were fashioned by Miss Henrietta Coleman, instructor in drawing, and she received many high compliments, when it was learned that she had made them.

The miniature houses in rooms one and two attracted favorable comment. Each house consisted of four rooms and every article of furniture, modeled after common designs, were made by the pupils. The furniture was folded from card board. Hand woven rugs in variegated colors adorned the floors and artistically designed paper done in water colors was on the walls. Linoleum, made with crayon, was on the floor of the kitchen. And the homes even had portieres made by the hands of the tiny tots.

The free-hand cutting elicited much praise from the visitors. Scenes from well known child's stories were depicted by the work and pasted on card board. Writing work was also exhibited. Miss Mae Meredith teaches number one.

The sewing work in number two, taught by Miss Edith Hiner, attracted the attention of the visitors. The girls have been doing this sort of work only since January, but they have made remarkable advances, as their work revealed. The exhibit consisted for the most part of aprons. The pupils of Miss Hiner's room entertained visitors with dramatic readings of some well known child's stories. They have been trained to act the stories before the school and make them very realistic.

The pupils of number three, taught by Miss Katherine Petry, had an especially fine display of writing. Individual examples of writing, bound in beautiful covers done in water color, were displayed. In this room the boys have mechanical pieces which they can rivet together and set up into various sort of things that are in everyday use.

The manual training work is taught in rooms four and five by Miss Belle Forsythe, the regular teacher in number five. Six pieces were displayed by each pupil. In addition to carving the pieces from wood, the boys finish them in all popular styles. The work is all done at school, and only one period of work is devoted to it.

Miss Georgia Morris teaches sewing to the girls of these same rooms. A large display of this work was made. In the main the work consisted of fancy aprons of many designs, and sewing bags. There were a few doll clothes exhibited. The raffia

SPILLED OUT ALONG ROAD

Emory Farthing and Ira Stevens of Andersonville Hurt.

Emory Farthing and Ira Stevens of Andersonville suffered painful injuries in a runaway north of Andersonville Wednesday evening while returning from a fishing trip. The horse frightened at something and became unmanageable. The animal spilled the occupants of the buggy all along the road. Farthing alighted on his face and is now carrying some beautiful bruises and scratches. Stevens escaped much of the pain his companion suffered because he fell on top of Farthing.

CHAIN BREAKS AND CAUSES ACCIDENT

Mrs. John Horst of Shelbyville, Sister of Mrs. Minnie Abercrombie, Suffers Broken Ankle.

LOCAL WOMAN AT HER BEDSIDE

Mrs. John Horst suffered a very painful accident Wednesday evening at her home on West Franklin street, when a chain on the porch swing snapped letting her fall heavily to the floor, the swing falling across her right ankle, breaking the large bone and dislocating the small one in the limb, says the Shelbyville Democrat. Dr. Samuel Kennedy was called and reduced the fracture and dislocation. The victim of the accident was sitting in the swing with Mrs. Si Pitman and her two little daughters, Antoinette and Dorothy. The latter little girl had just climbed into the swing when the chain on the side on which Mrs. Horst was sitting broke. The injury is a very severe one and it will be some time before Mrs. Horst will be able to be out again. She spent a very restful night notwithstanding the accident. Mrs. Minnie Abercrombie of Rushville, a sister, came Thursday morning to be with Mrs. Horst.

TO MEET TO FORM AN ORGANIZATION

High School Principals Will Gather Here Saturday to Plan an Oratorical Association.

5 CITIES TO BE REPRESENTED

Idea Which originated Here is Fostered by Local School Officials—Athletic Events.

Greensburg, Connersville, Newcastle and Shelbyville, together with Rushville, are the high schools which will be represented at a meeting here at the Graham high school Saturday of high school principals to discuss the advisability of perfecting a debating or oratorical association of eastern Indiana.

It will be recalled that local high school officials, after the Rushville high school had been voted out of the Central Indiana Oratorical association this year because of its disadvantageous location, announced their intention of attempting to form an organization of some sort among the high schools of this part of Indiana. The meeting here tomorrow is the result of this contemplated action on the part of local teachers.

Prof. O. D. Tyner, principal of the Rushville high school, addressed a letter to the principals of the Shelbyville, Greensburg, Connersville, Newcastle and Columbus high school superintendents, proposing the forming of the Southeastern Indiana Oratorical association. All of the principals replied favorably, with the exception of the Columbus official. He expressed disapproval of the plan and refused to attend the meeting here looking toward the organization.

Prof. L. B. Smelser, instructor in public speaking, will draw up a proposed constitution which will be presented to the meeting for adoption. A place for the first meeting of the association next year will be selected. It is not improbable that Rushville will be selected since the idea sprung up here.

The methods of the association of which Rushville has been a member for several years, will be followed as nearly as possible. It is hoped to induce the principals to agree to a track and field meet between the schools in the association the morning of the day of the annual contest.

The event will be in reality a declamation contest, because orations already prepared will likely be used, but the organization will probably be known as an oratorical association. It is said that some principals propose to make it in reality an oratorical association by compelling the contestants to write their own orations. This idea is opposed by local school officials who feel that the competition would not be as keen because of the lack of entrants in case original orations were compulsory.

RECEIVES CALL.

Members of the First Presbyterian congregation here have heard that the Rev. J. F. Cowling, formerly pastor of the Rushville church, has received a unanimous call to Osage City, Kansas. He is now pastor at Winona, Wis.

The Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows lodges at Blue Ridge will hold joint memorial services at the latter's hall in that place Sunday afternoon, June 1. Two addresses will be made and the speakers will be the Revs. Loren Tillison and O. J. McMullen. Following the services the graves of their deceased brethren will be decorated in the Blue Ridge cemetery.

PROPOSAL FOR BAND CONCERTS

Movement Here Looking Toward Summer Entertainment For People Growing Popular.

MAY HAVE PERMANENT STAND

Conference With Band Manager Will be Held to See What Kind of Contract Can be Made.

Now that summer, with its pleasant evenings, is here, Rushville people have begun the annual discussion of band concerts. The discussion is more animated this year than ever before and there is a very strong probability that the agitation may take some definite form.

One business man suggested this morning that a permanent band stand be erected in the court house yard and that preparations be made to make band concerts a permanent fixture in the life of Rushville. Rushville business men and others will likely have this question to deal with before very long.

A letter has been written to Newcastle to learn the cost of the band stand in the court house yard there. A beautiful structure is standing there and is put to good use every summer. Band concerts are very popular there. They are given regularly by the Maxwell-Brisco band and attract hundreds of men to the business section of the city.

There is nothing in the way of free amusement for the people of Rushville during the summer. Since Rushville has no improved city park, it is necessary to find entertainment individually and pay the price.

A conference will be held with the city band manager in a few days looking toward some kind of a proposition for summer concerts. The city band is more than willing to get the opportunity to play. The money the band would earn in this manner would make the band a financial success so that a greater selection of music could be purchased, and at the same time the band would be improving.

Most Rushville business men appreciate the value of summer band concerts. They establish a community interest and foster a city pride. They have been carried on with great success in many cities smaller than Rushville and have become fixtures in the city's life.

SENDS GEORGE BOY TO PLAINFIELD

Judge Megee Finds he is Incurrable and Orders That he be Taken to Boys' School.

HAYWOOD MUST PAY $3 A WEEK

Orpha George, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. George of West Tenth street, was sentenced to the boys' school at Plainfield this afternoon by Judge Megee in juvenile court. The George boy was up for petit larceny and it was shown the court that he was incorrigible. He returned yesterday from Connersville and was arrested by Policeman Wolter. He will be taken to Plainfield tomorrow morning by Sheriff Bebout.

Judge Broadus of Connersville was here this morning a short time, but little was done in the cases which he is special judge. Samuel Haywood was ordered by the court to pay Olive Haywood $3 a week until the divorce case pending in court was tried. The money is for the support of the children.

CALLS ATTENTION TO MAGAZINE SWINDLE

Circular Received by Police Offers Reward For Capture of Harry Houston With Many Aliases.

USES JUST PLAIN RECEIPT

Among the circulars and notices reaching the police is one from an eastern publishing company, asking the local police department to be on the lookout for a magazine swindler. The circular calls the attention of the police to a subscription swindler, using the name of Harry Houston, John Howard, E. M. McClure, L. M. McClure, and P. M. McClure, who is doing fraudulent work in this locality.

The swindler uses a plain receipt, such as can be purchased in any stationery store. He clubs any of the publications of the publishing company with many other publications at a range of prices. He offers practically any combination the subscriber may desire for whatever price he can get. A reward of $25 is offered for the arrest and conviction of Harry Houston.

He is described as being 5 feet, 9 inches, as having brown hair and eyes, medium complexion, brown mark on left cheek, like birthmark, weighing about 145, heavily built, 28 to 30 years old, said to be smooth shaven, of nice appearance and a smooth talker.

DRINKING ON A TRAIN UNLAWFUL

New Law Also Provides a Penalty For Use of Intoxicants on Premises of Railroad

ONE EXCEPTION IS INCLUDED

Two Other Acts Relate to Transfer of Saloon Licenses and Refund of License Fee.

Drinking intoxicants on steam or interurban cars, or in or about depots or on the platform, is a violation of an act passed by the last legislature. Another statute relating to the liquor traffic deals with the refunding of saloon license fees and a third one with saloon license renewals.

House Bill 79 (Chapter 20), approved February 19, forbids, under penalty of a fine from $10 to $50, or imprisonment of from ten to fifty days or both fine and imprisonment, the drinking of intoxicating liquors and drunkenness on railroad, interurban and street railway cars and trains, and premises. The penalty is denounced against "any person who shall, in or upon any railroad locomotive, caboose, passenger coach, interurban car, street car or upon any vehicle commonly used for the transportation of passengers, or in or upon any common carrier, or in or about any railroad depot, station, ticket office, waiting room or depot platform, drink any intoxicating liquor of any kind; or if any person shall be drunk or disorderly in or upon any such vehicle or in or about any such place."

"Provided, that the foregoing section shall not apply to the drinking of intoxicating liquors upon any buffet or dining car regularly licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors under the law of the state of Indiana." Conductors, station agents and employes may arrest offenders violating the act.

House Bill 158 (Chapter 129), approved March 7, amends Section 16 of the Proctor law (Acts 1911, Page 256). The provisions as to dates of original licenses to sell intoxicating liquors at retail, remain unchanged, but it is provided that in case of renewal of any such license, it shall be dated "as of the day following the date of the expiration of the license, or renewal or renewed; or where either an original license or any renewal thereof is refused by such board of commissioners, or, on appeal, such license or renewal is granted by the superior or circuit court, such license or renewal shall be dated as of the date of the judgment of such court granting the same. In case of application for any renewal, the applicant may continue in such business until the board of commissioners determine such application, and if such renewal be granted by the board of commissioners, the same shall be dated as of the day following the date of the expiration of the license or renewal so renewed. Nothing in this section contained shall operate to abridge the rights of any applicant for license or renewal thereof, given by Section 22 of the act (the Proctor law), of which this is amendatory."

House Bill 234 (Chapter 162) approved March 8, authorizes the repayment to saloon licenses, of the proportionate part of the license fee paid by them for the time such licenses had to run after a decision of the supreme court declaring that the board or court which granted such licenses had no authority to do so. The act is intended for the relief of the holders of some licenses in the city of Kokomo, which were terminated.

No More Storage of Grain by Dealers and Millers

In an interview with Grain Dealers and Millers of Rush County, as to the effect of the recent legislation, which provides that Mills, Elevators and Warehouses, that accept grain on deposit or storage, with or without compensation, shall become public storage companies, and fall under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission, the same as Railroads, Interurban Roads, Telegraph Companies, etc.

Each authorized the statement that they could not afford to comply with the requirements of the law governing public service companies, with its complicated system of bookkeeping, reports, etc., when business itself is unprofitable, hence they can not now longer accept grain on storage without rendering themselves liable to heavy penalties, therefore, to a man, they propose to abandon the practice entirely, and since the practice of loaning money to depositors and others has been indulged in so liberally by some grain dealers, in consequence of the storage of grain and otherwise, it is understood that such as have thus performed the functions of the banker will abandon that practice and no more money will be advanced, loaned or provided for by them, except in payment for grain, seed, etc., as the same is purchased and delivered.

DIDN'T KNOW WHEN HE WAS WELL OFF

This New Yorker Persisted In Seeking Trouble.

New York, May 23.—Agents of the department of justice in New York have been ordered to arrest Henry W. A. Page, a linen and cotton merchant, who was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the District of Columbia on May 29 last on conviction of having libeled members of the house judiciary committee, but was paroled during good behavior. The suspension of execution of the sentence, which has enabled Page to remain at liberty since his conviction, was rescinded by the supreme court of the District of Columbia, which imposed the original sentence. It is understood that the action of the court was taken at the request of the department of justice following the receipt by President Wilson of a lengthy document from Page in which the merchant complained of the treatment he had received at the hands of American courts. The details of the communication sent by Page to the president were surrounded with much secrecy, as also was the whole matter, pending an arrest. Although it was believed that something more than a mere complaint to the president was behind the action of the court in rescinding the parole and ordering Page's arrest, the federal officials here would not say that Page had threatened or otherwise annoyed the president.

JAPAN IS FACING A NEW TROUBLE

Emperor Yoshihito Reported Near Death.

THE WORD AT WASHINGTON

Administration Circles Are Busy Speculating on the Possibilities Suggested by News of Mikado's Condition, It Being Generally Conceded That the Death of the Emperor Would Distract Japan's Attention.

Washington, May 23.—The reported serious illness of the emperor of Japan, who is suffering from inflammation of the lungs, is regarded as the most important development in the present situation between the United States and that country over the California land legislation. The possibilities suggested by the news of the mikado's condition overshadowed in significance the information that the Japanese government is dissatisfied with the reply of the United States to the protest against the California law. Unofficial information received here created the impression that the Emperor Yoshihito is in danger.

It is generally conceded here that the death of the emperor would be likely to result in a political upheaval in Japan. The disturbance in China ending with the establishment of a republic has been echoing in Japan, and the symptoms of political unrest manifest among the Japanese populace for the last two years have been a source of great anxiety to the governing class in that country. Such an upheaval in the political affairs of Japan undoubtedly would serve to distract the attention of the people of that country from the present controversy with the United States.

The anxiety with which the administration regards the preservation of friendly relations with the Japanese government was indicated in the haste with which President Wilson dispatched a message of sympathy to the mikado. The news of the emperor's illness hardly had been published when a message was sent from the White House in advance of any official dispatch from the American embassy at Tokio giving confirmation of the press reports. The president's message to the emperor was as follows: "Reports received through press agencies are current to the effect that your majesty is indisposed. I have heard these reports with sorrow and with great concern. Should they prove to be true, I desire to offer to your majesty for myself and for the government and people of the United States the assurances of my sincere sympathy and to express the ardent hope that your illness may prove to be of brief duration and your recovery rapid and complete."

On the other hand dispatches from Tokio as to the light in which the Japanese government views the reply of the United States were far from reassuring. In fact, information from Tokio has verified the prediction that has been made in these dispatches that President Wilson would find it practically impossible to say anything to Japan which would satisfy her demands in the controversy.

Ambassador Chinda has not received any fresh instructions from Tokio, but it is expected he will receive some today. This expectation is based on the news from Tokio. It is expected that upon the occasion of his next call the ambassador will state that what his government desires is the elimination or nullification of the California statute and that it leaves it to the judgment of the president and his advisers as to how that can best be accomplished. Such a statement it is believed would bring the controversy to a head quickly.

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it:

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Loramit, Ohio, do certify that after treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walking with crutches and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. The result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will answer any one suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed."—May 31, 1912.

You may secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at Johnson's drug store and if not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica.

DEADLY EXPLOSION AT FORT MOULTRIE

Three Soldiers Are Killed at Target Practice.

Charleston, S. C., May 23.—When the breech blew off a three-inch gun which was being used for target practice of Fort Moultrie, three soldiers were killed and nine or more seriously injured. Privates Baker, Christensen and Dalton were killed, the former two being cut in two and dying instantly.

Captain Manna, who was standing with several other officers of the coast artillery, was badly wounded in the side by a fragment of the exploded cannon. Hospital Steward Lamar was injured in the right arm and hand. One account stated that the breech had not been properly closed after the insertion of a cartridge and that when the cap was exploded the breech was thrown back with terrific force. The wounded men were rushed to the post hospital, where immediate attention was given them.

LATE ALLIES NOW FIGHTING

Bulgars and Greeks Come Together in Furious Battle.

Salonica, May 23.—A furious battle is being waged between Greeks and Bulgarians in the Panghaon district. A recent arrangement to secure peace in the troubled region by the establishment of a neutral zone proved to be of no avail, as the Bulgars have crossed the zone and are trying to dislodge the Greeks from Mt. Panghaon, using heavy artillery to cover the attack of their infantry. The Bulgars are apparently much stronger than the Greeks. Trouble is threatened also within this city.

FOUND HIS WIFE MARRIED AGAIN

Strange Case of an Indiana Enoch Arden.

SUFFERED LAPSE OF MEMORY

Mysteriously Missing Twelve Years Ago, Mark McCandliss, Who Had Long Been Mourned as Dead by His Family, "Came to Himself" a Few Days Ago and Upon Returning to His Home Found Wife Remarried.

Anderson, Ind., May 23.—Mark McCandliss, a well-known glass worker, who mysteriously disappeared from this city twelve years ago, suddenly returned, after having been mourned as dead by his family for many years, and, like Enoch Arden, found his wife married to another man. An exhaustive search was made for McCandliss at the time of his disappearance and his description and photograph were sent to the police, of the country and reproduced in the newspapers of the larger cities. For several years he had been employed as a glass blower at the old Hazelwood glass factory. He had a wife and two small children, to whom apparently he was greatly devoted. After waiting for the return of her husband for four years, Mrs. McCandliss received a postal card from a Pennsylvania town stating that her husband had been killed in a railroad wreck. A few years later she married Charles Brickley and now lives with him on West Ninth street.

McCandliss appeared at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. Martha Hackenberg. As it happened, his two children, Marie and Dan McCandliss, were both at the home of their grandmother. Mrs. Hackenberg at once recognized her former son-in-law and pointed out his two children, who are now almost grown and who have only a hazy remembrance of their father.

McCandliss said he had very little recollection of having left Anderson and that for the last twelve years he has wandered all through the United States, working at his trade at various places. He said he had suffered a lapse of memory and only last week the remembrance of his family in Anderson returned to him clearly and he immediately came here to look them up.

GENEVIEVE PARKER'S TRIAL

Shelbyville Much Interested in the Progress of This Case.

Shelbyville, Ind., May 23.—The trial of Miss Genevieve Parker for assault with intent to murder Mrs. J. Walter Elliott, on a night in February, 1912, is in progress in the Shelby circuit court.

Mrs. Elliott, who had been married only a few months, was attacked by a woman carrying a flashlight, monkey wrench, oil and matches. Mrs. Anna Parker, mother of the defendant, and the first witness called by the state, gave her daughter's age as forty-one years. She said her daughter and Mr. Elliott were engaged before his marriage to his present wife, but that the engagement was broken in 1906. The prosecutor set forth that the evidence would show that Miss Parker committed the crime charged and that she was recognized by Mrs. Elliott. The jurors hearing the case are farmers with one exception.

HE THEN MADE HIS ESCAPE

Evansville Man Shoots Inmate of a Resort and a Policeman.

Evansville, Ind., May 23.—Ernest Pierce escaped after shooting and seriously wounding John Ising, a police bicyclist, and Eliza Gibson, a resort inmate. Ising went on a call to lower First street, after the Gibson woman had been shot, and while exploring a shed in which Pierce was hidden was shot and hit three times by the desperado. Pierce was once a convict at the Eddyville (Ky.) prison under sentence for shooting.

Value of Experts.

Objection has been voiced among the substantial farmers of Rush county to employing a county farm expert. The main objection seems to be that it is a useless expenditure of money because Rush county farmers know about all there is to know about farmers, and that the law was passed to make places for Purdue graduates.

The last objection may or may not be true. Nevertheless there are plenty of Purdue graduates who could give Rush county farmers some fine ideas which would give them opportunity to increase their yield.

For example, all farmers once selected their seed corn by pure guess work. They hefted the ear, sliced into the heart of a kernel with a knife and if the signs were propitious, why, there was their seed corn. Whether a poor crop resulted from this method of seed selection or from other causes the farmers had no sure way of proving.

Professor Holden, of Iowa, a farm scientist, one day took six kernels running spirally on the cob from each of a number of ears of corn. Each set of six kernels was placed on damp sand in a separate compartment in a shallow box. In four or five days germination was complete. Some sets of six were found to be all germinating strongly; some were half strong and half weak; some all weak and some not germinating at all. Then he planted the corn from all the ears by plots according to their classification in the germinating test. The corn from the ears that had germinated strongly in the test all came up and made a large and profitable yield. That from the half strong and half weak made only a fair crop in comparison to the former. The all weak made a pitiful crop and the ears that did not germinate in the test had better have been thrown to the crows for they made no crop.

Today many, though by no means nearly all farmers only plant corn that has graded one hundred per cent in the germination test. Agricultural reports show that these men are uniformly successful in raising bigger yields than when they practiced the old method of seed selection. It has been conservatively estimated that if all corn farmers would apply Professor Holden's germination test, with no more labor or expense, the corn crop of the country would be increased twenty per cent.

Rush county's farmers' share in such a gain would pay the expenses of a number of farm experts. And we only need one to show us countless other short cuts to easier and more profitable farming.

School Festivities.

The last weeks of school year mean worry about examinations and promotions. However, the question seems to be as to whether the dress-makers are getting the gowns right, and as to raising the funds to pay the dance orchestras.

School young people are men and women of the world now. Girls with short skirts do up their hair like grown women, and you must call them "Miss," or you will seem very awkward to their experienced minds.

While there may be an element of precocity in this change, it is a pleasure to see the unadulterated fun that the young folks get out of their social doings. They have not yet reached the stage when it is good form to criticise all things and admire nothing. They can still dance to piano if the whole band orchestra can't be had.

In so far as people can retain that attitude, they remain young, but in so far as they drop it and always see defects, they lose the priceless gift of youth.

Prof. Taft's opinions are extensively reported in the newspapers, but he will have to get out a gun and shoot something, if he is going to draw $1 per word from the magazines.

They are trying to get the South to reduce the cotton acreage. Perhaps the result will be that every one will expect a shortage and plant more.

Holland farmers are coming to this country on account of the high rents for lands at home. It is much better to live in a country where you don't have to fence off the bottom of the sea.

There are still a few people left who think you can get business by turning a lovely and secluded country scene into a slum bill-board.

Instead of making such a fuss about those stolen battleship plans, why don't they get busy and steal some other power's?

Secretary Bryan hasn't yet had to ask congress to give him something to do to take up his time.

A Modest Woman.

Mother, gray-haired, sweet and modest in her beautiful old age, had been on a visit to the country. She returned to her daughter's home here in Rushville by way of the side door and slipped up the back stairway, because she fancied she heard strange voices in the parlor.

"Come on down, mother," said the loving daughter. Mother called daughter to the head of the stairs and said shyly: "Wait until that strange man leaves."

Yes, daughter had purchased a Victrola during mother's absence and intended to surprise her.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

The Motive.

(Muncie Press.)

"The jingoes and the yellow press of Japan have apparently exercised too much influence over Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan already," says the Indianapolis Star, referring to the course of the national administration in the California matter.

So far as the Press is informed no Republican newspaper in the United States is trying to play politics with the administration's efforts to preserve the national good faith, and the treaty obligations of the United States and keep the peace with a friendly power.

This odious task falls to the lot of William Randolph Hearst's publications, the same publications that maligned President McKinley while he was trying to preserve peace with honor prior to the Spanish-American war, and a few yellow journals of the bull moose persuasion.

It is a noteworthy fact that Colonel Roosevelt, who is all there is of the "progressive" party that amounts to anything, not only is not joining in the effort to embarrass the national government in an international crisis, but is known to have urged Governor Johnson not to raise a question full of grave possibilities in its influence upon our international relations, and without warrant in the situation actually prevailing in California.

The rumor is current that in this matter the Star league speaks for Senator Beveridge who seeks to secure the leadership of the "progressive" party, and believes that by raising issue with Colonel Roosevelt in this matter, he can strengthen himself in popular esteem on the Pacific seaboard.

Whatever the motive back of the efforts of such papers as the Chicago American and the Indianapolis Star to impugn the patriotism of the president of the United States and of the American secretary of state, no real American is going to believe that President Wilson is influenced in his attitude by the "yellow press" or the yellow population of Japan, rather than by the duty which is incumbent upon a national administration to maintain the good faith and treaty obligations of the government of the United States.

Society News

Miss Bessie Downey and Burl Matney were married last night at their newly furnished home in New Salem by the Rev. W. W. Lineberry. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Downey of near Glenwood.

The sixth annual convention of the Sixth District Federation of Clubs was in session in Liberty yesterday with about fifty delegates from outside of Union county, and a large attendance of local club women. The meetings were presided over by Mrs. E. K. Montgomery of Shelbyville. Registration was in the new Stanley Memorial Building and the sessions were held in the First Presbyterian church.

The afternoon meeting was a president's meeting, with three-minute talks on what is the best thing your club has done this year; what is the prime purpose of federation; how can we help the federation and how can it help us?

Mrs. Felix L. McWhirter, state president, pronounced the invocation at the evening meeting. The address of welcome was made by Mrs. F. G. Craft and the response was by Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith of Cambridge City. Mrs. R. A. Hicks of Cambridge City, vice chairman, who was on the program for the response, was detained by illness.

A musical program followed, arranged by Mrs. Mark Bates and Mrs. John R. Miller of Greencastle gave a notable address on the subject of "Bypaths in Literature."

Mrs. McWhirter then gave a talk on the purposes of the federation, and the meeting closed with an informal reception.

Fifty to 100 more delegates were expected today. The sessions will begin at 10 and include an address on "Fundamentals in State Federation" by Mrs. McWhirter and reports of officials.

In the afternoon Miss Carrie Scott of the State Library Commission spoke and in place of Dr. Hurty, who had been invited, Miss Ada Sweitzer of Indianapolis spoke on a health topic. At noon a luncheon was held in the Stanley Memorial Building. Provision had been made for three hundred or more guests.

STRIKE BECAUSE OF DISMISSAL

Pupils at Idaho Springs Walk Out Because Supt. E. A. Lanning is Asked to Resign.

ONCE IN CARTHAGE SCHOOL
Refuse to Return Until Friend is Re-instated—He Whipped Son of Board Member.

Because Prof. E. A. Lanning, for three years principal of the Carthage high school and associated in the school work there with Prof. J. H. Scholl, was dismissed by the school board, a majority of the school children at Idaho Springs, Colorado, where he has been superintendent three years, walked out on a strike until he was reinstated.

Miss Lillie Weingart, of Littleton, Colorado, has sent clippings telling of the school strike to Carthage people. Prof. Lanning was very popular with the school patrons and pupils at Carthage. As well as being a good teacher, he was an athlete of some ability. The dispatches follow:

"All the boy students and two-thirds of the girl pupils at the Idaho Springs high school went on a strike because the school board, at a star chamber meeting, notified Prof. E. A. Lanning, who has been superintendent for the last three years, that his services would not be required after the completion of the present school year. The striking students declare they will not return to their studies unless the board rescinds its action. If the students persist in this course there will be no graduating class this year."

"The whole trouble seems to have found its inception when Prof. Lanning whipped the young son of A. A. Stover, a member of the board, for some infringement of the rules. The term of Mr. Stover and also of Mr. Roberts, another influential member, will expire in a few days when friends of Prof. Lanning hope to elect men who will reappoint him to the superintendency. It is held that all dismissals and appointments for the next school year are privileges that should go to the new board."

And this: "Hisses and hoots from 300 of the high school pupils at Idaho Springs when they returned to school, in disapproval of S. A. Norris, successor to the 'kids' friend', E. A. Lanning, caused Prof. Norris to shriek his dismay before the school board, and at the same time hand his resignation to the secretary, declaring it was too much for him."

The Argyle Case

A Novelization by J. W. McConaughy of the Successful New Play by Harriet Ford, Harvey J. O'Higgins and Detective William J. Burns, in Which Robert Hilliard Is Appearing.

Copyright, 1912, by Journal-American-Examiner.

"As a matter of fact," broke in Kayton abruptly, "just who was it that you thought you saw?"

Argyle's uneasiness increased. "Well, I don't want to say that I saw any one," he said reluctantly.

"You understand," said Kayton, with a stern frown, "that it might be very important that some one should have seen you leave this house."

"Oh—I see—well," the young man declared with the air of a man doing an extremely unpleasant duty. "I thought as I was going out that I saw somebody looking over the banister rail."

"What made you look up at the banister rail?" demanded Kayton, suppressing any trace of elation.

"I suppose I must have heard something," conceded Argyle grudgingly.

"Was it Miss Mazurek?" The question was almost a command.

The young man winced. "It might have been one of the maids," he parried.

"Why didn't you speak to her?"

"I wasn't sure—and she drew back. Look here, Hurley!" He wheeled on the lawyer with a glare. "You needn't give this to the papers. God knows what they'd make of it! They'd have Mary up there just waiting to—"

"Now, my dear fellow, don't be absurd!" interrupted the lawyer testily. "The thing that strikes me as most significant is the telephone message. Don't you think so, Mr. Kayton?"

Kayton faced about on him.

"What do you see significant in it?" he inquired brusquely.

Mr. Hurley fidgeted slightly. He did not like the way in which his words were caught up every time.

"Well, now, I'll tell you about that," he declared. "You see, the person who called him up must have known his private telephone number. That would indicate some one who was familiar with the house and—"

"Yes?" said Kayton encouragingly as the lawyer paused.

"And the fact that he was disturbed by the message, but said nothing of it."

"This is nonsense, Bruce!" exclaimed Mr. Hurley, coming forward. "Mr. Kayton has got to question Miss Mazurek if he's going to be of any help to her or to us. Come along with me."

But the young man refused to budge. "Mary, don't you want me to stay here with you?" he asked. The girl took his arm and gently pushed him toward the door.

"No, no; thank you, Bruce," she replied steadily. "It's all right; please go."

He led her to a chair and made her sit in it and then reluctantly allowed Hurley to lead him out.

Kayton sighed wearily, drew up a chair near to the girl's and sat down.

"Miss Mazurek," he said gently in his most courteous manner, "I can understand that this affair has been a great shock to you. And you feel the loss of Mr. Argyle probably more than any one. I don't need to say that I sympathize with you thoroughly and that I don't want to do anything or ask anything that will distress you. But a murder has been committed, and if I am going to clear up these suspicions I must have the co-operation of everybody in the house and especially you."

"Yes, yes!" exclaimed the girl, with a pathetic eagerness that stirred the man beneath the expert's professional exterior. "I want to do everything—anything I can."

He nodded and smiled gratefully.

"Now, let's see," he began in the friendliest tone. "Where were you born?"

"In San Francisco," replied Miss Mazurek. She began to feel strangely at home with this masterful stranger.

"Do you remember your mother?"

"No." She shook her head. "I don't about everything, but naturally a man of his many interests must have made enemies."

Bruce had been walking impatiently about the room while this conversation took place, and he now came forward.

"Mr. Kayton," he said desperately, "you may not be able to prove who did this. We'll be satisfied if you'll only prove that Miss Mazurek didn't."

"Well," replied the detective gravely, "the best way to prove who didn't kill your father is to prove who did kill him. Is this Miss Mazurek?"

A tall, slender girl with great masses of deep brown hair and great dark, serious eyes came slowly into the room. Her cleanly cut, oval face was as white as her negligee gown, and she was plainly struggling to keep her composure.

"Yes," she said. "Mr. Kayton?"

"Yes," he replied with a bow. Bruce went swiftly to her and put his arm about her.

"You oughtn't to be down here, Mary," he reproached tenderly, with the air of an affectionate big brother. "There's no need for it. You look awfully ill, Mary. It's too much for you. Please go back."

"I sent for Miss Mazurek," interposed Kayton quietly, his gaze on the girl's pale face.

"But, Mr. Kayton," protested Bruce, "you don't understand. It's too much to ask her to come down here. It's the first time the room has been opened since—"

"No, no, Bruce," the girl interrupted gently. "It's all right now, please."

"I should like to have a talk with Miss Mazurek alone if you don't mind," said Kayton in the same quiet tones, addressing the two men. But young Argyle was in open rebellion.

"She's had enough to bear!" he declared angrily. "I'm not going to have her put through any third degree!"

The detective's lips came together in a razorlike line.

"Just a moment, Mr. Argyle," he said icily. "Before we go any further with this investigation I want you to understand clearly that I am in sole charge of it."

"This is nonsense, Bruce!" exclaimed Mr. Hurley, coming forward. "Mr. Kayton has got to question Miss Mazurek if he's going to be of any help to her or to us. Come along with me."

But the young man refused to budge. "Mary, don't you want me to stay here with you?" he asked. The girl took his arm and gently pushed him toward the door.

"No, no; thank you, Bruce," she replied steadily. "It's all right; please go."

He led her to a chair and made her sit in it and then reluctantly allowed Hurley to lead him out.

Kayton sighed wearily, drew up a chair near to the girl's and sat down.

"Miss Mazurek," he said gently in his most courteous manner, "I can understand that this affair has been a great shock to you. And you feel the loss of Mr. Argyle probably more than any one. I don't need to say that I sympathize with you thoroughly and that I don't want to do anything or ask anything that will distress you. But a murder has been committed, and if I am going to clear up these suspicions I must have the co-operation of everybody in the house and especially you."

"Yes, yes!" exclaimed the girl, with a pathetic eagerness that stirred the man beneath the expert's professional exterior. "I want to do everything—anything I can."

He nodded and smiled gratefully.

"Now, let's see," he began in the friendliest tone. "Where were you born?"

"In San Francisco," replied Miss Mazurek. She began to feel strangely at home with this masterful stranger.

"Do you remember your mother?"

"No." She shook her head. "I don't remember either my father or my mother very well. I was too young when they died."

"And you have no relatives?"

There was a moving quality of sympathy in the gentle voice.

"None that I ever heard of."

"There is no one who would inherit this money from you or have any other reason for wishing you to get it?"

"Oh, no!" gasped the girl, horrified at the thought.

"Did Mr. Argyle ever object to your intimacy with any friends?"

"Why," said the girl wonderingly, "our life was so retired I met hardly any one."

"No man wished to marry you?"

"Oh, no!" was the quick reply. And Kayton vaguely wondered why he should have felt a sense of personal relief. "Mr. Argyle wanted Bruce to—"

"to," she went on with hesitation, "but we couldn't. That was impossible. We were like brother and sister."

The great detective nodded with unnecessary conviction and remarked:

"Then you have no reason for suspecting any one?"

This question was accompanied by an unusually keen gaze. The girl trembled violently and put her handkerchief to her lips.

"Oh, no, no!" she gasped. Then she stared wildly about, rose to her feet and burst into hysterical sobs. Kayton was beside her in an instant.

"What is it—what's the matter?" he demanded, and felt an impulse to put his arm about her as Bruce had done.

"I don't know—I—" sobbed the girl, her face buried in her hands—"I don't seem to be able to control myself—any longer."

Kayton touched a slender arm with clumsy solicitude.

"Wait—wait a moment," he urged her kindly.

"It's horrible," sobbed the muffled voice. "It's all so horrible! It's worse down here! I can't help thinking of him—on the floor—this floor—"

"Won't you try to put it out of your mind?" begged Kayton. "I want to help you."

The girl struggled bravely for self control and lowered her hands, disclosing a lovely, tear stained face.

"Yes, I know that," she said tremulously, darting him a look. "I haven't been like this before. I haven't talked about it to any one—I couldn't! I've tried to keep from reading the papers, but I had to! I read them all, and they're getting worse about me every day until it seemed as if the whole city—"

"How is it possible they can make it all so probable?" she cried piteously, the tears streaming unchecked down her face. "Shall I have to go through a trial?"

"Oh, I think not," he said reassuringly. "We'll hardly let that happen. Now, tell me," he went on with gentle insistence, "you went to your room rather early that night? About 9:30?"

"Yes." The word came out uncertainly, but the storm was evidently over. Kayton, with almost womanly kindness, placed her in her chair again and sat beside her.

"Leaving Mr. Argyle and his son alone?" he went on encouragingly.

"Yes."

"You heard the son go?"

"Yes."

"You saw him go?"

A pause, and more slowly, "Yes," very slowly, as if to be sure of each

"Oh, no—no!" she gasped.

word, "and I was a little alarmed. I got up—and opened my door."

"You heard voices?" suggested the detective as she paused.

"Yes."

"Mr. Argyle's?"

"Yes—"

"Did you know who was with him?"

The question came swiftly on the heels of her answer. It brought a new expression to her dark eyes—terror.

"I—I wasn't sure," she replied with a desperate effort.

"Did you hear anything that sounded like a struggle?"

"No. They had closed the door."

"But you did hear angry voices?"

No reply.

"Didn't you?" insisted the detective sharply. There was a very faint and reluctant "Yes."

To be continued.

THE CZAR'S JOB NOT DESIRABLE

Ruler of the Russias Kept In Constant Terror.

VIVID CONTRAST AT BERLIN

While the Kaiser's Visiting Cousin George Goes About the Streets Just Like One of the Folks, Their Panicked Stricken Cousin Nick Passes Between Double Rows of Fixed Bayonets to Palace's Seclusion.

Berlin, May 23.—Rulers over more than 600,000,000 people, three emperors whose dominions cover two-thirds of the area of the globe, met when Emperor William and George, emperor of India, embraced and greeted Nicholas II., emperor of Russia, on the platform of the Anhalter station. They have come to Berlin for the wedding tomorrow of the Kaiser's daughter, Princess Victoria Louise, to Prince Ernst, son of the Duke of Cumberland.

The reception of the two monarchs was curiously alike, but King George and Emperor Nicholas emphasized strongly the dissimilarity and strange diversity between their lives and home surroundings and the relations between them and their peoples. The czar entered the Kaiser's capital hedged about by hundreds of his anxious subjects who preceded him from St. Petersburg to make the journey safe and assist the German authorities, shielding him from bomb attacks. He drove between lines of soldiers standing shoulder to shoulder with fixed bayonets, along a route literally swarming with police. At the same time King George was driving through side streets back to the palace in an open motor car without an escort or guard of any kind. The czar remained in seclusion within the shelter of the palace walls, while King George and Queen Mary motored to the Grunewald race-track through several miles of streets lined with thousands of school children and adults.

It was a day of royal entries into Berlin, and the Kaiser was kept on the move welcoming his guests at the station. There was an animated picture in and around the Anhalter station. A bewildering medley of colors was seen on the platform when the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland arrived. There was not a man there in civilian garb. Uniforms of green, red, blue and gold were seen on every side.

A few minutes later the scene was changed. The police worked a transformation and the streets around the station were as clear as though they had been swept by a broom. The station became deserted. Along the railroad track, commencing inside the big shed, there was a soldier with a rifle loaded with ball cartridge every fifty yards, this line of troops extending along the railroad for twenty-five miles to Kustrin, to guard the czar. When the czar arrived he and the Kaiser at once entered a carriage and started for the palace. The Russian emperor looked pale and careworn and nervous.

The Kaiser gave a banquet at the palace last night to the wedding guests and the diplomatic corps. The banquet is said to have been the most magnificent affair of the kind ever given by the Kaiser. The guests numbered 250, nearly 100 of whom were royal. The Kaiser took in Queen Mary, King George the Kaiserin, the czar the dowager Grand Duchess of Baden, the Duke of Cumberland Crown Princess Cecile, and Prince Ernst his fiancée. Princess Victoria Louise. One of the features of the banquet was the placing of ninety young cadet noblemen clad in scarlet and gold behind the chairs of the diners. The same guests will attend the special performance of Lohengrin at the grand opera tonight.

The press of Berlin gives a warm welcome to King George and the czar. Their visit is pointed out as an important indication of the friendship of the three countries which it is expected the meeting will cement still more.

PEOPLE EVIDENTLY ARE GETTING WISE

Notable Falling Off In Wall Street Trade.

New York, May 23.—Within the last ten days several stock exchange firms have laid off men. Branch offices have been abolished and general retrenchment in office and staff expenditures has been put into operation. The movement to cut down expenses has been especially marked since the beginning of May.

A firm that has been doing an extensive business in lower Broadway has recently allowed about forty clerks and other employees to go. At least ten large firms have reduced their forces of clerks, messengers, telephone boys and others recently by from twenty to fifty employees.

The dullness not only in the stock market, but in the general bond and investment, security and banking business that has prevailed, especially during the last year, is such a threadbare subject that it has reached the joking stage in conversation.

THE STONE RANSOM FUND

Congress Reimburses Persons Who Aided in Missionary's Release.

Washington, May 23.—The senate has passed Senator O'Gorman's bill providing for the reimbursement of the contributors to the ransom fund by which Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, was rescued from a party of Albanian brigands in 1901. The appropriation carried by the measure is $66,000, and it is provided that in instances where the original donors have died since the episode, their heirs will receive the money.

Met End With Resignation.

Macon, Ga., May 23.—After bravely facing for a week the inevitable result of his mistake in taking a tablet of bichloride of mercury, B. Sanders Walker, a young Macon banker, is dead. Walker met the end with a resignation that had rendered the case more than usually interesting throughout the country.

Our stock of monuments this season, surpasses anything we have heretofore carried, embracing a neat selection from the modestly plain to the elaborately carved from model designs.

An order for a monument placed now will insure its erection for Decoration Day.

The Products from the numerous quarries in the Barre, Vermont, district vary, not alone in color, but also in quality of stock. Who selects yours?

Montello and Millstone granite are of one uniform quality, the highest grade of monumental granite quarried.

MONTH OF BRIDES WILL BE FEIRCE

Hicks, the Prognosticator, Has an Ugly Bunch of Weather Mapped Out For Suffering Public.

SOME THUNDER AND LIGHTNING

And Then There Are a Few Big Wind Storms Thrown in For Good Measure—Electrical Crisis.

Prophet Hicks, in his forecast for June, says that this month of flowers and weddings will also be a period of storms and disaster. But maybe not. Read it for what it is worth.

A reaction storm period extends over the 2d, 3d and 4th. Moon is in conjunction with sun and earth on the 4th. The falling barometer and storms of rain and wind, which will develop in the west about the 2d, will reach different longitudes in their eastward progress, on and touching the 3d and 4th. These storms will reach their greatest extent and strength on and next to the 4th. The barometer will rise, and cooler, westerly winds will follow the storms from two to three days—say about the 5th to the 8th. The first June seismic period covers the 1st to the 7th, having its center on the 4th.

A regular storm period involves the 6th to the 12th. This period is coincident with the annual bagetic and electrical crisis, which is at its center each year on and about June 11. Its peculiar influence is noticeable from about the 5th to the 15th, notably on the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. Heavy storms of wind, rain and thunder will touch many sections in their eastward sweep over the country on and touching the 10th, 11th and 12th. Thundergusts at this and other June periods will swing back and come upon you from unusual directions—often from eastern points of the sky after storms have seemingly passed over your vicinity. Whirlwinds and tornadoes often grow out of these erratic June storms.

Much of the sheet lightning and the flashing from cloud banks around the horizon during June evenings, is harmless, although it may be very brilliant and startling. Such displays of electricity are usually without thunder and rarely, if ever, send lightning bolts to the earth. But the concentrated June thunder storms are always intensely charged with vicious lightning bolts, and when they are in the near vicinity, the greatest care should be exercised against danger.

REPUBLICANS LEAD THE BULL MOOSERS

Cast 2,148 More Votes in the Indianapolis Primary Than Did the Third Party.

DR. W. H. JOHNSON NOMINATED

Early returns in the Indianapolis primary to select candidates for the city offices were borne out in the final unofficial report which shows about the same comparative standing between the candidates as well as about the same comparative vote of the three leading parties. The Democrats led with a total of 20,794 east, and the Republicans were second with 6,942. The Progressives were third with 4,794. This was the combined vote for the mayoralty candidates in each instance.

The final outcome shows the lead in the Republican vote over the Bull Moose vote greater than the early returns indicated. The Republicans cast 2,148 more votes than the third party. Dr. W. H. Johnson was nominated as the Bull Moose candidate for mayor.

C.H.&D. CONDUCTOR MASHED FOOT OFF

Injured Member Has to be Amputated After Accident Occurring While Unloading Oil.

MISHAP AT FOUNTAINTOWN

The foot of Lon White, conductor on a C. H. & D. local freight, was crushed off yesterday while he was assisting in unloading a barrel of oil at Fountaintown.

The member was mashed to a pulp and he was hurried to Dr. McCray's office at Morristown, where it was found necessary to amputate the injured member. Mr. White suffered much pain from the shock of the accident but his condition is not regarded as very serious.

Muriel Willard, aged fourteen years, daughter of E. V. Willard, who resides one and a half miles south of Fountaintown, broke her left collar bone yesterday. She was going to the hen house to get some eggs, and while running came in contact with a clothes line and was violently thrown on her back, the rope catching her just under the chin and the fall breaking her collar bone as well as injuring her internally.

The little girl was to have been one of the contestants in the graduating class of Van Buren township last evening. Although painfully hurt and injured internally her condition is not regarded as extremely serious.

I.&C. DEFENDANT IN $5,000 DAMAGE SUIT

John Wilson of Waldron Files Action Against Railway Co. and Local Interurban Co.

PLAINTIFF FELL IN A DITCH

The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railway company and the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company were made defendants in a suit for damages in the amount of $5000, filed in the Shelby circuit court Thursday by John Wilson, a resident of Waldron, through his attorneys, Meiks & Hack, says the Shelbyville Republican.

The complaint states that on the tenth day of February, 1913, while walking along Pearl street in Waldron about nine o'clock in the evening he stumbled and fell in a ditch. He fell a distance of four feet to the bottom, severely injuring himself, permanently crippling his left leg and causing him to be very nervous. The ditch is one to drain the land between the tracks of the two railroad companies at Waldron and runs under the tracks and down Pearl street, crossing the sidewalk at Pearl street and running west. The complaint alleges that the companies had no lights on the ditch and no warning of any sort.

ated by a decision of the supreme court; but it provides in general terms for the relief of any holder of a saloon license who, in good faith, relying on the decision of any board or court granting it to him, took out the license and paid the required fee of any county, city or incorporated town, but was afterwards deprived of it by a decision of the supreme court to the effect that under the circumstances such board or court had no authority to grant him a license. The proportionate part of such fee is to be returned by the county, city or incorporated town to which it was paid.
